MADISON NGUYEN REFUSES TO TALK WITH THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT 7

DUONG CHALLENGES NGUYEN TO THREE DEBATES

“San José District 7 Residents need to know that we have clear differences in how our city and district should be managed.”

San José, CA, 9/3/10 – After a formal challenge to three San José City Council District 7 debates, candidate Madison Nguyen has refused to talk with the voters of the district. At a candidates’ forum hosted by the Downtown Association on August 13, candidate Minh Duong handed Nguyen a challenge letter.

City Council District 7 runoff candidate, Minh Duong, challenged opponent, Madison Nguyen, to three(3) debates throughout the campaign in an effort to share with the voters the issues and differences on how to solve them in the district and throughout the city.

The Duong Campaign proposes hosting three community specific debates: one focused to the General community, one focused to the Vietnamese community, and one focused to the Hispanic community. Duong believes this will help address all the issues facing District 7, as well as answering general city questions from the voters.

Says Duong, “I believe that the voters of District 7 need to hear why I am the best choice to help manage our city budget. As a small business owner, I know very well how to remain fiscally responsible and get our city out of a growing 118 million dollar deficit. This is unacceptable.”
